RUFFER INVESTMENT COMPANY LIMITED

Investment Manager's Report

For the period from 1 July 2011 to 31 December 2011

In the six month period from 1 July 2011 to 31 December 2011, the net asset value per share of the Company fell in capital terms from 195.6* to 193.5p* which, together with a dividend of 1.5p, represents a total return of -0.3%, compared to the target return of 0.5%, being twice the Bank of England base rate over the period. Over the same period the FTSE All Share fell 6.2% on a total return basis.

Since launch on 8 July 2004 the NAV of the Company has risen by 120.2%, including dividends and over the same period the FTSE All Share has produced a total return of 69.3%.

Despite a small decline in value during the six months this was a period "to be got through" and that has by-and-large been achieved. Markets experienced a high level of volatility (the FTSE All Share declined 18% from its peak in July to its trough in October) and the net asset value of the Company was pleasingly steady throughout. Our offsetting assets came into their own in the dark days of August and September. Both the US dollar and our Australian dollar put options proved their worth but index-linked bonds stole the show giving a positive contribution of over 4% and offsetting the losses experienced in the equity portfolio. The long dated bonds were the best performers and some profits were taken during the period in a reverse twist operation; we sold the better performing 2040 TIPS and reinvested the proceeds in the 2015 TIPS thus maintaining our USD exposure but reducing the duration (and volatility) of the US index-linked bonds. The buyer of our long bonds was the US Federal Reserve in its quantitative easing programme playing out the opposite version of our "twist" and unsurprisingly, given that the objective is to lower long term interest rates, the prices were well bid!

There were no tectonic shifts in asset allocation. Equity trades within the company were biased to the buy side as we invested the proceeds from new share issuance. We maintain a preference for large, defensive and typically high and well-covered dividend paying companies and these stocks rode through the volatility better than their smaller and more cyclical counterparts. In the case of the US equity holdings we made positive returns in local and base currencies.

We wrote in June that the price of safety had risen considerably in the preceding twelve months and this was well exemplified in the cost of assets such as gold, the Swiss franc and even cash when considered in real terms. Index-linked bonds have been a beneficiary of this continuing trend but this leaves us in a quandary; they are expensive relative to any point in their (quite short) history and it is therefore tempting to take profits but if our outlook is correct in terms of real interest rates then we may only be in the foothills of what this asset class can do for us. We believe that firmly negative real interest rates will be the solution to this credit fuelled crisis and now that a large proportion of the accumulated debt has moved from the private sector onto sovereigns the likely road is to default, but this will now be an inflationary one rather than an outright default. Do we sell our index-linked bonds? No, but we need to ensure that there are other assets in the portfolio that will benefit from a reversal of the safe-haven buying that has taken place and this means keeping up our equity weightings.

Europe must of course be mentioned given the magnitude of the crisis that is unfolding but we do not feel that there is much that we can add to an already crowded debate. Our approach thus far has been one of avoidance (with the exception of the German property stocks which could prove to be a direct beneficiary). We are hedged on the currency, we have avoided direct exposure to peripheral sovereign debt or companies which may hold that debt (i.e. financials) and most of our European equities are global rather than euro-centric businesses. It is of course impossible to avoid the secondary effects entirely.

We have read the other information contained in the half-yearly financial report and considered whether it contains any apparent misstatements or material inconsistencies with the information in the condensed set of financial statements.

Directors' Responsibilities

The half-yearly financial report is the responsibility of, and has been approved by, the Directors. The Directors are responsible for preparing the half-yearly financial report in accordance with the Disclosure and Transparency Rules of the United Kingdom's Financial Services Authority.

As disclosed in note 1, the annual financial statements of the Company are prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards. The condensed set of financial statements included in this half-yearly financial report has been prepared in accordance with International Accounting Standard 34, "Interim Financial Reporting".

Our Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express to the Company a conclusion on the condensed set of financial statements in the half-yearly financial report based on our review.

Scope of Review

We conducted our review in accordance with International Standard on Review Engagements (UK and Ireland) 2410, "Review of Interim Financial Information Performed by the Independent Auditor of the Entity" issued by the Auditing Practices Board for use in the United Kingdom.

A review of interim financial information consists of making inquiries, primarily of persons responsible for financial and accounting matters, and applying analytical and other review procedures. A review is substantially less in scope than an audit conducted in accordance with International Standards on Auditing (UK and Ireland) and consequently does not enable us to obtain assurance that we would become aware of all significant matters that might be identified in an audit. Accordingly, we do not express an audit opinion.

RUFFER INVESTMENT COMPANY LIMITED

5. Operating segment reporting

The Board of Directors makes the strategic resource allocations on behalf of the Company. The Company has determined the operating segments based on the reports reviewed by the Board, which are used to make strategic decisions.

The Board is responsible for the Company's entire portfolio and considers the business to have a single operating segment. The Board's asset allocation decisions are based on a single, integrated investment strategy, and the Company's performance is evaluated on an overall basis.

There were no changes in the reportable segments during the period.

As required by IFRS 8, the total fair value of the financial instruments held by the Company by each major geographical segment, and the equivalent percentages of the total value of the Company, are reported in the Portfolio Statement.

Revenue earned is reported separately on the face of the Condensed Statement of Comprehensive Income as dividend income received from equities, and interest income received from fixed interest securities and bank deposits.

The Condensed Statement of Cash Flows separately reports cash flows from operating, investing and financing activities.

6. Principle risks and uncertainties

In general terms these may be highlighted as including an unexpected and sharp appreciation of Sterling against the US Dollar and other currencies held in the portfolio. A sudden decline in inflation expectations or a prolonged period of outright deflation across developed economies could also have an adverse impact on the portfolio, as could a sudden rise in real interest rates in the UK or US. Other potential risks include a sharp fall in the price of gold and unexpected stock specific declines in the share prices of the portfolio's equity investments. Equities currently constitute 53.17% of the Company's Net Asset Value, with no single exposure greater than 5.00%. The above risks could specifically affect, among other things, the Company's 27.30% in US Dollar denominated assets, 34.69% in government index-linked bonds and 5.00% in gold and gold equities.

7. Subsequent events

These financial statements were approved for issuance by the Board on 23 February 2012. Subsequent events have been evaluated until this date.
