

LF Ruffer Diversified Return Fund

Positive absolute returns with low volatility

During December the fund was up 0.7% compared to the return on the UK Bank Rate of 0.3%.

A new year, a new beginning. Many investors may find themselves limping into 2023 with a growing sense of crisis fatigue from the last few years. Contrastingly, we find ourselves rather energised as events are broadly sweeping in the direction we have spent years preparing for.

At the moment, a benign market outcome in 2023 depends on an almost impossible trinity: a short and shallow recession, a rapid decline in inflation and an aggressive Fed pivot. Not impossible, but would you bet on it? Why would inflationary pressures, so broad-based as we enter 2023, suddenly dissipate? And even if they do, won't that be because a recession has driven unemployment up? How quickly can a Fed, so concerned about letting the inflation genie out of the bottle, realistically reverse course? If the real economy is deteriorating fast enough that inflation will drop like a stone, then why wouldn't investors also price in significant downside to corporate earnings? We don't have reasonable answers to these questions, but we do have a plan.

In the near term, we are somewhat positioned for a disinflationary lurch on the inflationary journey, bond yields coming down and a bumpy recessionary landing. We are waiting for the opportune moment to pivot towards a portfolio positioned for higher nominal growth alongside inflation and financial repression – but it's not yet. So there is a degree of what appears to be cognitive dissonance in our portfolio construction, because the portfolio we believe you want for the coming six to nine months is almost entirely different from the strategic portfolio you might want to navigate the coming decade. The risk is we are trying too hard; the danger is, by not trying to navigate through choppy markets, investors could get hurt.

We go into the year prepared for an uncomfortable ride. The first half of the year could instead be about an unusually durable US economy, sticky inflation, and a higher peak in interest rates. Alternatively, the market may be saved from further hawkishness but only because the recession happens earlier, and at greater speed. Neither has a happy ending for investors.

The setup points to significant volatility as market participants grapple with narrative swings and shifting financial conditions. We recognise we will need to trade actively to preserve capital in these choppy waters and are ready to change our views as circumstances change. For now, equities remain at their lowest level in our history – 12% gross and around zero net of option protection – though in December we added a 3% position to oil futures via an ETC and have rebuilt gold exposure towards 5%.

These periods are processes, not events. Asset markets are down, investors are impatient to buy the dip and return to money-making. These things take time: there were six months between Northern Rock and Bear Stearns and a further six months before Lehman Brothers. Patience and preparation are our watchwords and, in the meantime, for the first time in 14 years, you are starting to be paid a decent return to wait.

C class December 2022 Issue 16

Investment objective

To seek to achieve positive returns in all market conditions over any 12 month period, after all costs and charges have been taken. Underlying this objective is a fundamental philosophy of capital preservation. Capital invested is at risk and there is no guarantee that a positive return will be delivered over any one or a number of 12 month periods.
